PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF AOTEOROA NEW ZEALAND

ACPC is a member of PCANZ – we continue this week with more information on the PCANZ outlook taken from the PCANZ website www.presbyterian.org.nz/

Making a Difference

Presbyterians are mission-focused people. They're interested in engaging with our society, with other groups and with individuals. The Church has more than 400 congregations with mission programmes that link them to the life of their communities.

- Programmes for young children and their parents
- Youth programmes
- Cultural groups and activities
- Alpha programmes that introduce people to Christianity
- Holiday programmes for children and young people.

The Presbyterian Church of Aotearoa New Zealand is also active in mission overseas.

Sharing in Worship

In some of our churches, worship is traditional and formal; in others, services are contemporary and informal. You might encounter: organ music, Island gospel choirs, contemporary bands, ancient Psalms, café worship, "spirited conversations"...

LAUNCH OUT

Launch out into the deep. Luke 5:4

Dr. Robert Schuller's hobbies include raising koi fish. Asked why some grow big while others stay small, he replied, 'If a koi fish lives in a small tank it will never grow longer than two or three inches. In a larger pond they can grow up to ten inches long-in ponds the size of mine they'll get to be eighteen inches long-but if they live in a huge lake where they can swim and stretch, they can grow up to three feet long. The size of the pond determines the size of the fish.'

Similarly, little ideas in little-thinking minds produce little achievements. But little ideas embraced by big-thinking minds produce enormous achievements.' Jesus said, 'According to your faith be it unto you' (Matthew 9:29).

The size of your faith and your vision determines the outcome of your idea. Edison had to install electric lights for free in an office building before anyone even came to look at them. The first sewing machine invented was destroyed by a mob in France. Morse waited for ten years before the world showed any interest in his telegraph. And when the idea of travelling by railroad was introduced, people scoffed because it was widely believed that travelling at thirty miles per hour stopped blood circulation in the human body.

Ronald E. Osborn said, 'Undertake something difficult; it will do you good. Unless you try something beyond what you have already mastered, you'll never grow.'

You attain in direct proportion to what you attempt, which is why Jesus said to His disciples: 'Launch out into the deep.'
